Tell us a little bit about your background and experience:

I worked with a fabrication company for 12 years, in the accounting department, then moved to the HR/Payroll department. When my family and I moved to Coeur d'Alene a couple of years ago, I decided to get my real estate license. I've worked in real estate the last two years.

What are your current responsibilities?

My main job is customer service. A permit tech is the front line for the Building Department, so being available and ready to help is a big part of what I get to do. Processing permits is another major aspect of my job. Scheduling inspections and keeping permits organized for record keeping are some of my other responsibilities.

What is the most fulfilling aspect of your job, and why?

Learning about the building process and codes is really fascinating to me. I grew up around construction and have held a passion for design and home improvement. Getting the opportunity to learn about all the intricate components of a builder's job has been a great experience for me.

What do you love about Coeur d'Alene, and North Idaho?

The beauty and outdoor lifestyle. We came to Coeur d'Alene to be closer to family, but living here has been a blessing in so many ways. My children get to experience the outdoor lifestyle that I had the privilege of experiencing growing up. They get to see the four seasons which are all beautiful in their own way. It's a great place to raise a family.

What about your family and interests?

I have a husband of almost 9 years, and we have two beautiful children. Most of my free time is spent taking care of my family and driving them to various activities. My personal interests that don't surround my family are interior decorating, yoga, and I started to enjoy gardening in more recent years. Enjoying life with my family is what's most important to me and we get to enjoy it in the most beautiful area.
